MAYAL PAY.

The House, after a long debate on the subcet, finally adopted a new pay lable for the avy. The Democratic members charged that navy. The Democratic members charged that the Navy Department-had been paying the officers of the navy an increase of 32 per cent. above their actual salaries authorized by law. The House voted to stop that, dispense with all allowances, and fix a stated rate of pay for sex duty. Compared with the old law, the pay of Admiral is raised from $10,000 to $12,000 a year, Vice Admiral the same; Rear Admiral from $5,000 to $6,000, Commodorra, from $4,000 to $6,000, Commodorra, from $4,000 to $6,000, Commodorra, from $5,000 to $8,000, Licettenant Commanders, from $3,300 to $3,000, Licettenant Commanders, from $3,300 to $3,000, Licettenant Commanders, from $3,000 to $2,000 a Medical paying the same of the same of

THE SAYE APPROPRIATION HILL.

IN the debate in the House to-day, on the neval appropriation bill, Mr. Beck, of Kentucky, submitted some facts and figures of the extra vagance of this Administration, that are simply astoucting. He said he was prepared to show that the Navy Department had co-pended, during the fiscal year, thirty-sight millions of dollars. This surplus amount was used from the processed of sales of Government property. In the Treasury Department there were 1,600 more employes than the law allowed, being an increase of 600 over the Hiegal screen in April, 1899. Two millions of dollars, nearly, were required to pay these yearly salaries. The pretense, asid he, that the Government is being economically administered is a fraud and chess.

that the Government is being economically administered is a fraud and chems.

THE AMENIED BAN DOMINGO TENATY will be seen this week to the Senate, and the President hopes for bether success than with the one now pending. The new treaty appropriate one million and a half to the payment of the Dominican indebtedness, and provides for the appointment of a joint commission, who are to make disbursements in the following order: First, to the payment of foreign governments who may have claims against the republic; second, to the payment of individual creditors who may not be citizens of the republic; third and last, to the extinguishment of the domestic debt; and it is expressly slipshed that, beyond these and the payment of $1,500,000, this government is not to be liable in any manner. So that, if the treaty should be ratified, a large mass of the Dominican indebtedness must be repodiated.

How human nature, not history, thus illustrated, repeats itself from age to age, and all experience proves the case with which demagogism can play, in every country and in every period, upon popular caprice, ignorance, passion and credaility. Here we have in Senator Mosrors a fact of the most objectionable of the elast of politicians whom he denounces, using their arguments and their sactics, and all as one.

Here we have in Genster Monrow a tec simile of the most objectionable of the class of politicians whom he denounces, using their arguments and their tactics, and almost their very language, as well as embodying their personal characteristics.

There have and flourished in the old Democratic party, when it was so strong that there seemed to be no possible break in it, a group of leaders—showy, shallow and sell-willed—who intensified its nature and hastened its downish. During ten or a dozen years it was impossible for the more prudent and thoughtful members of the party who saw the threatened danger to moderate the temper or check the impetuosity of their uitrs colleagues. These latter spoke well and dealt out a species of glossy platitude full of sound and tury that passed for eloquence, but signified nothing but ultimate war and ruin. It cannot be denied that many of themnotably Mr. Ruerr and Mr. Yawourwere honest. But they had not seen the world, and they made the very natural made headstrong man, and Wawalat, of Texas, an active, nimble—witted and plausible popular declaimer and rough-and tumble debator, and Harnis, of Texas, an active, nimble—witted and plausible popular declaimer and rough-and tumble debator, and Harnis, of Texas, and active, nimble—witted and plausible popular declaimer and rough-and sumble debator, and Harnis, of Texas, and active, nimble—witted and plausible popular declaimer and rough-and sumble debator, and Harnis, of Texas, and active, nimble—witted and plausible popular declaimer and rough-and sumble debator, and Harnis noore of others—whose careers exemplify in a striking manner the peculiarities which produce revocuted to the congress of the United States, we would and ISENJAMIN, and hairs score of others-whose careers exemplify in a striking man-ner the peculiarities which produce revo-lutions as distinguished from those which revolutions produce. If one or all of these old partisans should be restored to the Congress of the United States, we would doubtless have a curious sight to look up-on. Travel can not fail to have produced ney and City Engineer, have no light work before them to execute this charge as, in our judgment, it should be done, viz: Most prudently, most judiciously and most a great impression upon such men as TOOMBS and HARRIA. Pertinent to the solution of this problem are two leading ideas: 1st. The pavement experience of other ily show us the difference between the untaught but dashing politician of a by-gone era and the statesman trained by mistor-tune and enlarged by experience for the uses of the present and the future. In this taught but dashing politician of a by-gone era and the stateman frained by mistortune and enlarged by experience for the uses of the present and the future. In this connection we do not mention Mr. Davis nor Mr. Symphukus, because they represent exceptional schools of their own, and do not come under the class we are here describing. Our purpose is to call attention to a parallel which we shall establish before we are done.

To begin with Mr. Morton, of Indiana. He is a counterpart of Mr. Toomas, of Georgia. No one will deuy the ability of either. Both speak well, and, like most good speakers, like to speak often. Mr. Toomas, so the speak well, and, like most good speakers, like to speak often. Mr. Toomas began his career as a moderate Whig. So did Mr. Morton. How best to apply it to Louisville. Whig. So did Mr. MORTON. In like manner, perus-ing the specious arguments, the tawdry, declamatory finery, the easy platitudes, the appeals to passit in which compose the speeches of Mr. MORTON, one is led to marpavements; and the improved Belgia block, in syenite, granite, or equivalen Extensive Nicolson contracts still con-Extensive Nicolson contracts still continue in most of these cities, and it is not improbable that a practicable process may yet be devised to prepare the wood chemically for longer pavement-life. With greater duration it would, undoubtedly, sustain the expectation once entertained as to its usefulness.

In cost there is a notable difference be-tween Louisville and New York—there, $55 per square of 100 square feet; and here, $55 per square of 100 square feet; and ners, from $30 to $37. The McGonegal is similar to the Nic-olson, the blocks being six inches deep, two and three-quarter inches wide, and bored on each block, and then triangular grooves formed on each side, to allow close junction by dowels or keys of hard or prepared wood. This pavement is laid either on concrete or tarred boards. It is claimed to be superior to the Nicolson pavement. but, although contracted for at the same cost, its limited use in New York does not appear to sustain the claim.

The Stafford is another variation of the Nicolson. The blocks, dressed to an un-form thickness, are grooved in the middle with double dovetail, two and one-half by three-lourths inches, each side of the block bevelod at one end and running to an edge, so as to form a groove on the upper surface. The blocks are arranged in convenient sections to permit renewal. One square of this pavement in Wall street, New York, has attracted favorable comment, but from unexplained causes its may trace a rude, half-unconscious instincerity—the insincerity of the mind that abandons itself to a faction in the belief that it is serving its country, and is so vements in limited use, an accurate de scription of which has not reached us.

The Stow pavement, still another variation, has been extensively adopted in San Francisco, and is tavorably considered Francisco, and is favorably considered there. The knobe blocks, six by three inches, are laid directly upon a carefully-prepared sand or gravel foundation, and between these bearing blocks, a row of separating blocks, wedge-shaped at the ends, are driven down into the sand with rammer and swage. The spaces are then filled with clean, coarse gravel, well ram-med and saturated with hot coal-tar. Over all is spread the covering course of tar and fine sand or gravel. This pavement, from bad work or other causes, does not appear to have given satisfaction in New York. The Mayor vetoed a large number of confracts recently ordered, upon the ex press ground of the failure of the Maiden Lane (New York) pavement on that principle.

There are several other forms of pavement-wood, composition and concrete-which cannot be specially mentioned at this time from want of space. A brief rence to the cast-iron pavement must close somewhat extended descriptive notice In New York several attempts have been made to use cast-iron blocks in lieu of atone and wood, thus far without complete success, on account of cost and unequal settling, and also unskillful or bad work In Boston the experiment has been much more successful. The report states: "The iron block pavement has stood admirably, and shows no material signs of surface wear after ten or twelve years of constant use. It can be cast in such forms as to give the best foothold for horses drawing heavy loads. It can be kept per-fectly even and made as smooth as the Nicolson pavement, and, by its extreme hardness, will give much less resistance to wheels." There is nothing so uncomfortable as in uncomfortable hat, and, unfortunately, almost all hats are uncomfortable this hot weather. One of the most cool and delightil that we have yet seen is the "Star of Love hat," which was received by Joe McCann at his his tatore, corner of Fifth and Jeffenon, yesterday. It is light, neat, any and cheap, and hat that will inertiably become a fastion and a freerite during the prevalence of hot weather. Dealers in produce, cotton and dry goods are referred to the card of Mesers. Saulabury, Respess & Co., Macon, Ga. This house, we understand, has been recently reorganized, with a large additional cash capital, and can no doubt afford equal advantages with any other firm in that thriving city.
